

Summer 368

The floods in summer of 368 interrupted hostilities, for Valens could not cross the Danube. He had no choice but to take up winter quarters at MARCIANOPOLES. He would not have wasted the entire summer if Constantine's bridge in Dacia ripensis had still been intact.

368

The PICTS and Scots invade
Britain but are defeated by
THEODOSIUS

368

War of Valens with the Goths.